CALCUTTA SHARE MARKET.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CALCUTTA, Nov. 10.

Money continues very tight in Calcutta, but the Bank of Bengal directors at their meetings to-day made no change in the Bank rate which remains at six per cent. Coal shares have not moved much as yet, but this month's exports from Calcutta Port promise to establish a record and the strike in South Wales is expected to re-act favourably on Coal shares in India. As regards jute the unexpected rise which has taken place in price of the raw article from thirty-six rupees a bale to fifty rupees is adversely affecting the position and considerable uncertainty exists as to the future.

CALCUTTA, Nov. 10.

The Calcutta Share Market opened dull this morning, although there was a certain amount of inquiry observed for one or two jute stocks. Sellers of tea shares were more in evidence than buyers and coal shares were neglected. The following transactions were reported;—

Coal shares: Auckland, Rs. 4-12; Sudamdih, Rs. 5-4. Miscellaneous: Calcutta Tramways, Rs. 73; India General Railway, 4 per cent. debentures, Rs. 92; Government securities, 3 1-2 per cent. Government paper is quoted at Rs. 93-8 for cash and at Rs. 93-9 for delivery in one month.

KARACHI FREIGHTS.

KARACHI, November 10.

The Home wheat and seeds markets continue dull and consequently the demand for freights shows no improvement. The native sellers of wheat are again holding off and no likely to meet the buyers until after the winter rains in December. There is practically no ready tonnage available and the forward position is somewhat easier. The Ellerman Line met shippers and booked 7,500 tons, December-March. The Hansa line booked 200 tons, December, at 16s. 3d., both for Hamburg. Two charters have been reported the s. s. "Chulmleigh," November O.C at 16s. the s. s. "Floristan," Messrs Sanday Patrick, December, picked ports at 15s. 3d.

BURGLARY IN THE FORT.—About three o'clock yesterday morning hamals sleeping in various office premises in Hornby Road, Fort, were aroused by the noise caused by the breaking of glass panes. It was found that some burglars had broken into the Reliance Watch company's shop and before the neighbours or the policeman on the near post could arrive, they had succeeded in [illegible] them watches and jewellery, valued at Rs. 1,000 to [illegible] including some of the watches the customers sent there for repairs. The Divisional police are making inquiries, but the culprits have not yet been arrested.

DEATH OF A CHAPLAIN.—There passed away on Sunday, the 6th instant, after a severe illness, at the residence of his brother in Poona, a revered priest in the person of the Rev. Fr. Marshal D'Souza, Chaplain of St. Joseph's, Hubli. The Rev. Father did much for his parish and parishioners. Instead of a small and inadequate chapel, there is now a spacious edifice. In place of a delapidated priest's house, barely fit to live in, there is now a substantial parochial house. The St. Mary's High School, a three storeyed-building, built by him at a cost of about Rs. 12,000, will stand as a monument to Father D'Souza's zeal in the cause of education. A solemn Office of the Dead was held at Hubli on Sunday, the 6th inst., and a solemn Requiem High Mass was sung on Monday.

THE LATE FATHER MULLER.

The Rev. Father Augustus Muller, S. J. whose death at Mangalore has already been briefly announced, was a naturalized citizen of the United States, America, and was born in Westphalia on the 13th March, 1841. In 1861 he went to New York and joined the Jesuit Order on the 24th September of that year. After the usual two years' novitiate he spent six years at St. John's College, Fordham, and one year at St Mary's, Montreal, and was then sent to Woodstock College, Maryland, to go through a course of Philosophy and Theology. At the end of five years, his health, which had always been poor, broke down completely. However the treatment which accomplished his cure in Paris opened his eyes to the value of Homœopathy, and conceiving at that time the idea of consecrating his life to foreign missions, he thought that the knowledge of this branch of science might be supremely useful to him. With the sanction, therefore, of his superiors and under the guidance of Dr. Espanet, his physician, he set apart every day a certain portion of his time for the study of Homœopathy, and treated cases amongst his own brethren under the direction of the same doctor. These studies were continued next year under Dr. Joseph Bechet at Avignon. It was here that Father Muller published his first work of Homœopathy for the use of Missionaries, revised and corrected by Dr. Bechet himself.

Father Muller landed in Mangalore on the first of December 1878, and was one of the first batch of Fathers, sent out to open the Jesuit Mission in South Canara. After a little over one year of parochial work at Calicut, he was attached to the teaching staff of St. Aloysius' College, where he remained for nine years. To the arduous work of teaching he added the ministerial duties of Chaplain at Codialbail, where his instructive Konkani sermons on Sundays are still remembered by many. His philanthropic work which afterwards assumed such large proportions had a humble beginning. His stock of medicines was a small box of drugs from Paris. The success of his treatment induced friends to help him to add to his stock and to develop his work. How signally that work has prospered is patent to every one that passes by Kankanady Hill at Mangalore and views the various edifices that grace it. Father Muller's Charitable Institutions how consist of the Homœopathic Poor Dispensary, St. Joseph's Leper Asylum with fifty inmates, the two combined Hospitals and Poor Houses with 70 beds, and the Bubonic Plague Hospital.

And this drastic decree is issued in the name of Liberty, and without the sanction of Parliament—as if the expulsion of these poor women could be a matter of national urgency."

HIGH COURT.

HOUSE TRESPASS.

ON the Appellate Side of the Bombay High Court the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Batchelor and the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Rao disposed of the application for a revision of the order of Mr. T. V. Naik, Second Class Magistrate of Hubli, who convicted Irangawda and Kallappa Sanappa of house-trespass and fined the first accused Rs. 70 and the second Rs. 30. Mr. H. O. Koyaji with Mr. Nilkant Atmaram appeared for the accused.

The facts of the case are that there is a Government Primary School at Byabatti and an assistant master was transferred to another school. Accused No. 1 is a member of the school committee and he did not like the transfer. Accused No 2 was a rich man of the village. The accused wanted to get rid of the head master and they thought that if the attendance was reduced it would bring discredit on the master. With this view they entered the school and obliged the master to strike out the names of a number of boys. They also forcibly drove out several boys and persuaded them to attend a private school. The police were then called and the present case against the accused was instituted. The defence of the first two accused was that being dissatisfied with the teaching in the school they took away their boys. The other accused tried to prove an alibi. The Magistrate held that the behaviour of the first two accused in the school was unlawful and their entry into the school, was a criminal trespass. As the first accused was the principal offender, he was fined Rs. 70 while the second accused was fined Rs. 30.

Their Lordships dismissed the appeal.

SEDITION APPEAL.

ON the Appellate Side of the High Court, the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Batchelor and the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Rao disposed of the appeal of Devsing Mahansing, who was charged with sedition under Section 24A of the Indian Penal Code and sentenced to three years' rigorous imprisonment by Mr. A. C. Wild, Sessions Judge of Nasik.

The accused was charged under the section with the publication of a photographic print called "Rashtra Purusha" or the nation personified, the photo was taken from a pencil drawing made by the accused. The publication of the photo was admitted and the question for the court to decide was whether he the accused by publishing it brought or attempted to bring into hatred or excited disaffection towards the Government established by law in British India. Disagreeing with the Assessors, the Sessions Judge convicted the accused and sentenced him as above stated.

Their Lordships in delivering judgment said that the main evidence was really the evidence of the photograph itself, and although some of the photographs were photographs of gentlemen against whom there was nothing to be said, yet the Court must take the photograph as a whole. And so considering it, their Lordships were clear that its symbolism plainly exhorted to hatred of the established Government, that was plain throughout the picture and particularly by the selection as models for imitation of persons who had rebelled against the existing Government or had been executed for murder or convicted of sedition.

Their Lordships accordingly dismissed the appeal.

POLICE COURT.

MISSIONS AND GOVERNMENTS.

A FEATURE of the Rev. W. H. T. Gairdner's account and interpretation of the World Missionary Conference at Edinburgh in 1910, is the section dealing with Missions and Governments, Few, we know, have not heard at some time or another the utterance of the time-honoured dogma that missions and their agents are the most troublesome of all the things that daily vex the statesman—this, or words to a similar effect; and truth to tell it is not without some foundation. But Mr. Gairdner, himself a missionary, found solace in the declaration of the Hon. Seth Low that "a large amount of helpfulness" existed between many Missions and Govments within whose territories they are; and that as the unselfish aims and beneficent results of missions are being more widely appreciated, the good understanding between missions and G[illegible] ing. This was distinctly the impression that [illegible] had gained from the total correspondence they had had. Mr. Low was of opinion that friends of missions might conscientiously feel justified in asking Christian Governments to use their good offices with those of other nations for the free admission and exercise of Missionary endeavour, and this, not on the ground of religion, but on account of the now proved beneficence of this work and the common right of humanity not to be denied its advantages. Mr. Low's opinion was immediately endorsed by a former Governor of Bombay, who showed out of his own experience, that missions were auxiliaries of Government and that the services they render to it are invaluable. Lord Reay's experience as Government of Bombay taught him that Missionary effort was helpful to Government, an auxiliary to the administration. So it is throughout India and in every country which has a civilised Government and a civilised people, and be it recorded that among the most tactful, zealous and successful auxiliaries are the Jesuits, an order which other Governments, in their own countries, combine to persecute. Missionaries and Governments and their relations to one another is a very wide subject and one which has many ramifications.

There are Missionaries and missionaries, as there are Governments and governments. That is unfortunate, but it accounts for the fact that, all said and done, missions and their agents are undoubtedly troublesome to statesmen. We are inclined to doubt if the Committees at Home are always composed of men, fully competent to judge of the qualifications of the recruit they send out to the mission field or of the requirements of the field they send him to. It is not enough to have an earnest, God-fearing man, ready to yield up his life "for the good of the cause." Such a man might make an ideal parochial curate or perhaps a country vicar; possibly even an Indian Presidency chaplain. But the missionary must know a little of mundane things and must have an eye to both worlds, if he would be helpful to Governments, especially where the people are ignorant and statesmen unwise or immoral. Barbarians, such as they have to deal with in many fields, are in the habit of consulting the missionary on subjects, concerning which they have no possible knowledge and given advice which not infrequently leads to trouble. The missionary, with no knowledge of the world in such cases, is a danger and a menace. But less desirable still is the muscular Christian, who, invaluable in the East End of London, or among unskilled labourers in Birmingham or Liverpool, is shipped off to the South Sea Islands, to China or New Guinea. He is the sort of man, who, once consulted and having taken his stand, would keep it and defy authority. Such men ought to be found a sphere of labour at Home where they may live under the eye of the Bishop or the Moderator, or the President of a Methodist Conference, and never given an opportunity of acting on their own judgment as exercising their own discretion. How many collisions, how many disturbances, have they not directly caused? China alone could recount enough. The missionary must be something more than a godly, righteous and sober man. He must have a knowledge of the world and its people, be tactful and amenable to discipline, must know and understand the laws of the people among whom he labours or he will have little success. If he understands "first aid," better still if he is acquainted with medicine and surgery, even dentistry, it is a point, several points, in his favour and renders him preferable to his deeply learned and eminently pious brother, who appears to be chosen at present.

Mr. Gairdner recognises the bewildering variety of considerations in regard to Governments and the facilities for mission work. There are, he knows, Christian Governments which may be favourable, not unfavourable or opposed to missionary work, Governments non-Christian and tolerant of that work; Governments non-Christian and not tolerant—in all the various degrees and shadings of these qualifications. And there are countries which cannot claim to have any Government at all, where each man is a law unto himself and the chief is but a leader in battle and the missionary is regarded as an interloper, to whom civility is afforded so long as he remains inactive. Such mission fields as these last are fewer every year, not as the result of mission work but of the rapid march of colonisation and of European protection. But as regards the most difficult of all fields, namely, China, a Chinese convert and misssionary did well to impress upon the Edinburgh Conference that China has her religions and a Government to which loyalty, respect and justice should be given by all Chinese Christians or non-Christians, as well as by the European, American and Japanese Powers. He was, Mr. Gairdner says, impressive in his demonstration of the lamentable blunders which foreign intervention is apt to create, and in his counsel to missionaries never even in the most extreme cases to extend their protection to the Chinese Christians, and to make this principle clearly known to the would-be converts from the beginning before they are received into the church. The Conference realised the impossibility of laying down principles that would apply universally ; but there is reason to believe that if the precepts offered by various missionaries of experience be carefully observed and acted upon, there will be less friction in the future and the missions may become, as they apparently desire to, helpful to Government. At the same time they had better content themselves with the performance of their legitimate work and leave administration to statesmen.

THE UNIVERSITY GARDENS. WE congratulate the public of this city on the fact that His Excellency the Governor has declined to sanction the act of vandalism, which the Senate of the University proposed to commit on the one piece of picturesque Bombay, which has been permitted to remain in the Fort. We need not recapitulate the objections raised by the European section of the community against the scheme, and we congratulate Sir George Clarke on having reached a clearer realisation of public opinion than [illegible] quarter of rupees that all consideration of public utility were obscured. A satisfactory feature of the letter, which was recently addressed by the Educational Department of the Bombay Government to the Registrar of the Bombay University, communicating the decision of His Excellency in Council, is that it contains unmistakable indications that the question has been considered in all its bearings, and that the rejection of the Senate's proposals was not based on a mere desire to please, or to yield to popular clamour. Incidentally, it is interesting to note that the question of the Matriculation Examination, around which there has been such burning controversy, was a considerable factor in the official consideration of the subject ; for the letter, after noting the suggestions to abolish this examination, "which had ceased to fulfil its object and had become open to much criticism," proceeds :—"One of the main objects of the new Examination Halls was to accommodate the Matriculaexaminees, who now sit in a temporary mandap. As stated above, His Excellency in Council has already suggested that this examination should be abolished and he would find difficulty in acquiescing in, or in giving financial support to, any scheme that tended to perpetuate it." But, although, the Governor has very properly decided to attach weight to the strong public representation which has been made on this subject, he has, we think, suggested an excellent solution of the difficulty, and has in contemplation the provision in connection with the Science Institute of Bombay, of halls for examination purposes. These will increase the total suitable accommodation to a figure ample for the needs of the University, and this additional accommodation will be at the disposal of the Senate whenever required. If the Senate is disposed to fall in with this proposal, the Government will still grant the lakh of rupees originally offered. In view of the altered circumstances, and of the fact that the Senate have had no control over them, it may not be too much to hope that Sir Cowasji Jehangir will not withdraw the generous interest he has always taken in the Educational requirements of the city—an interest which has not failed to win the grateful appreciation of all communities. We observe that the Senate have been invited to make a pecuniary contribution to the new scheme, and it would be unfortunate, were they, owing to the withdrawal of Sir Cowasji's generous offer, compelled to present a much-depleted fund to be joined with the Government allocation. For ourselves we think that the alternative proposals, which have been made by Government will completely fulfil the requirements of the motive, which originally actuated Sir Cowasji in making his offer.

THE AERONAUTICAL SOCIETY. THE Aeronautical Society of Great Britain is the oldest established institution of its kind in the world, having been founded in 1866, and has just revised its rules for the first time. Naturally, writes a corresponding member, the extraordinary developments of the last four or five years have put an entirely different complexion on all aeronautical matters which have passed from the stage of dreamers and the laboratory into the realm of practice ; consequently a set of regulations that was admirable 46 years ago has proved considerably out of date to-day. It is felt, however, the Society has unfortunately delayed too long in making a change in its policy as well as its rules, and of late it has not been exercising one tithe of the influence it ought. Its rules, as remodelled by the Council, show that the Council itself is in hopes still to remain in control of the whole body—that is to say, the election of the officers of the Society shall be as much a matter of form as possible, which, of course, is the one way to prevent its members taking any lively interest in the affairs at all. Many eminent names are on the Council, but there is nothing but their names to represent many of the most distinguished men in the actual work done for the Society, all such scientists being naturally far too busy with their own investigations to have leisure to do the executive work that is essential before the Society's affairs can be brought to such a state that such distinguished talent can be employed in its proper direction. A general consideration of the new rules gives cause for misgiving, because matters move so rapidly nowadays that traditions are no use unless a body is efficiently constituted and conducted by men not only fully alive to the needs of the day, but also possessed of the quality of gauging the needs of to-morrow. It would almost appear as if the Society wanted remodelling rather than its rules.

TO REFORM THE IDLER. THE idea has assumed shape in France which is to bring the young idler back under the moral law by means of labour, if necessary, of hard labour. We referred to it at length some days ago. We learn that the plan gives him, whether he likes it or not, the chastening influence of the workshop atmosphere where he is prepared for a regular apprenticeship and this system, if followed steadily, should bring about social regeneration while leading indirectly to industrial progress. The incipient vagabond would thus gradually disappear and the adult idler automatically cease to develop. The repressive measures that M. Flandin's Bill suggests, and that have gained the approval of a great number of serious students of social problems, of workers among the depressed classes and of lawyers who see much of the ruin that follows swift on the reckless idleness of the section who detest work and whose families consequently drag on a hopeless, objectless life, too often ending in crime and its punishment, seem well calculated to make the loafer tired of his elaborate dodging of work by making his almost vigorous resistance to labour of any description useless. He will be grasped with a firm hand and made to do something for his living and for that of those depending on him. But the repressive measures advised by M. Flandin open another chapter in the treatment of idlers, which may be reserved for another day. It is a singular fact that the untutored savage and the effete and degenerate product of centuries of civilisation should be equally averse to that labour to which the human race from very [illegible] of these seem inclined to make the best of a strict law, and put their shoulders to the wheel of steady work.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS.

(FROM OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, OCT. 21.

HATS.

IT cannot be denied that during the last few years women have added no little to the sum of the world's laughter by the style of their hats. We have seen these hats caricatured in the comic papers and satirized in "vers de societe"; we have heard even Bishops rail at them with gentle mockery ; we have known them the butt of the wit and the buffoon. The latest fashion in hats do not inspire admiration, but rather amusement, together with some wonder as to their disposal, or the disposal of their wearer, on the occasion of a drive in motor-brougham or closed taxi. I do know that the hat must either be placed on the seat, or she who wears it must sit on on the floor, for in the construction of a carriage no thought is given to so exaggerated a fashion. One hat I saw was entirely composed of the darker feathers of the peahen, a band of breast feathers forming the brim and a tuft of tail feathers the crown. The latter were arranged to stand erect, with the tips just caught together so that they should remain stiff and unswayed by the wind. I need hardly say that the result was remarkable. In spite of criticism and raillery, whether grave or gay, woman goes on her way quite unperturbed. She well knows that, in spite of the statement written over a hundred years ago, no one can possibly "distinguish by the look of the hat the state of the wearer's mind," whilst talking of the hats the quaint fashion of wearing a lace cap beneath the large hats must be mentioned. Some of the milliners are producing dainty little contrivances of fine Italian lace, or of silver or platinum net and embroidery, or again of white net with closely-kilted frills. In shape some of these are not unlike the caps worn by pretty little "Cherry Ripe" in Millais's picture, and others recall the close-fitting headdresses of the Dutch. In either case they are put on independently of the hat, and are arranged in the manner most becoming to the face, and the large hat is then placed on the top. The effect, when it suits the wearer, is quite piquant and attractive. A modification in this fashion is to be noted in the frills of lace which are laid inside the brim of the hat in such a manner that they rest on the hair at one side, or only at the back, or all round—just as it happens to prove most becoming.

MEN'S HATS.

There are comparatively few silk hats worn in London to-day, and the average man makes his dress headwear last three times as long as he did formerly, for the simple reason that he uses it much less frequently. Of course, everybody who is anybody possesses this at one time indispensible and still fashionable article, but it is used only for ceremonial occasions, and is not often seen, even in Piccadilly or the Park. One reason for this falling-off in popularity of the silk hat is due, according to a well-known manufacturer, to the advent of the motor-car, which enables an ever-increasing number of people to live out of town, where the silk hat with its attendant frock coat, is unnecessary. Another reason is the vogue of the Homburg soft hat, popularised through the fact that King Edward frequently adopted that type of headwear. In the City, too, the silk hat has largely given way to the once despised "bowler," or "billycock," as it was originally called. The morning coat, equally with the frock coat, the place of which it has to a great extent taken, needs a silk hat, but the lounge suit is now the most popular wear, and with it goes either the bowler or the Homburg.

PORTUGUESE WOMEN.

One is hearing so much about Portugal just now, that a word or two about their women may be interesting. Although women have often played a great and sometimes even a decisive part in revolutions in the past, it is evident that the women of Portugal have not had much to do with the upheaval which has so dramatically dethroned the young King Manoel. Yet they are vitally interested in the new Republic ; the only question is how far it will affect the position of women in Portugal. In the working classes they do much rough work, emptying the fishing boats and serving as porters in the towns, where they may even be seen carrying sacks of coal. All over the north of Portugal women work in the fields. The infant mortality is very great, as so large a part of the population are just on the margin of subsistence, and the elementary laws of hygiene are not understood. Education is in a backward state, and the law which compels children to go to school is largely evaded owing to the poverty of the parents. If situations in business, teaching the telegraph service, and the like, are closed to the Portuguese women, who are, indeed, brought up as a rule entirely with a view to marriage. There seems to be a great prejudice against clever women, such as were once called "blue-stockings" in England, and this although the Universities are nominally open to both sexes. This curiously Oriental attitude towards women is no doubt a legacy from Moorish times. The supremacy of the man, whether father, husband, or brother, is absolute, and in the south of Portugal it is actually the custom for him to eat his meals in solitary grandeur, while the women of the family wait on him.

SURPLUS WOMEN.

Statisticians tell us that the excess of women over men in United Kingdom now amounts, in round figures, to something over 1,000,000. That is an arresting fact for those English girls who in default of marriage, will have to earn their own income. It means an overcrowding of the professions open to women ; the drifting of women into uncongenial and unsuitable work ; the inevitable subsidence of hundreds into the ranks of the distressed gentlewoman. It means that in England success will be reserved to the woman of ability and of staying power ; the woman who has been able to afford expert training, and to profit by it to the full. Canada is sadly in need of trained women, well trained to some useful occupation, but the cost of training is quite impossible in many cases. At the Horticultural College for women, Swanley, Kent, they train girls for the colonies, teaching, dairy work, bee-keeping, fruit growing, and packing as well as many other useful things. It has been proved, during the seven experimental years at Swanley, that the class of girl best fitted to make a success of her life in the Colonies is precisely that class least able to afford training fees—the daughter of the struggling professional man in the country town, of the country clergyman, of the gentleman farmer, of the retired officer. What sounder method can we find of strengthening the Empire than sending to Canadian homes the English outdoor girl, bred up in all the best traditions of the English country home, active, sound-limbed, courageous, honourable, loyal ? That is the citizen Canada is asking for. That is the girl who fails only too often in the struggle for salaried work in England.

AN AUTHORESS.

Madame von Hindenburg, whose new volume, "The Winter Queen," concerns itself with the history of Elizabeth Stuart, Electress Palatine, and Queen of Bohemia, was the Hon. Marie Hay. Before her marriage, only daughter of the late Lord Dupplin, and niece of the Duke of Fife, whose sister, Lady Agnes Fife (now Lady Agnes Cooper) was her (Miss Hay's) mother. It is a curious fact that members of the Hay family had always taken a great interest in German politics, and although it is the pride of most English people to master the French language, their ambition was to excel in speaking German. In the end Lady Muriel Hay married Count Munster, a German, and her niece married Baron von Hindenburg, a well-known member of the German diplomatic world. Even as quite a child Mme. von Hindenburg gave proof that she had inherited her father's taste for letters, and playing about the Dupplin woods, would call on her friends, big and little, to listen to a recital of the verses she had composed: "My Husband," I remember was one, and "Two Poets" another. She was a lovely child, fair-haired, and with a mat-white complexion. As a girl she was seen about a good deal in London in the chaperonage of her uncle, Lord Kinnoull, and her interesting personality, wit and independence of mind made her many friends. The first books, she wrote, "Diane de Poictiers," and "A German Pompadour" were favourably reviewed, but not of such general interest as is her new history of Elizabeth Stuart, the sister of King Charles the First, whose daughter married the Elector of Hanover, who to quote Thackeray, "brought the reversion of the crown of the three kingdoms in her scant trousseau."

WOMEN GARDENERS.

The demand for women gardeners is stated to be increasing. The man of experience and ability who is put in charge of a garden is sometimes too much of an autocrat with too little sympathy with his employer's wishes. He has been known to resent his master's presence in the garden, and to object to the gathering of flowers. His feminine competitor, it is found, is as a rule more anxious to please and l self-willed, and hence comes her popularity. O women have been found posts as garden designe but the number of these is naturally limited, and good landscape gardener must possess natural talen which no training can impart. Farming has be taken up by many members of the union with su cess, and the demand for land is growing. O woman agriculturist farms 700 acres and emplo 17 men. Most of those who are working on a small scale have specialised in some one department, su as poultry or bee-keeping or dairy work. Mark gardening has generally been found to be a payi employment for women, and the officials of the uni are able to give advice as to the methods likely to suitable in particular districts.

"GRACE."

The play is somewhat reminiscent of Pine "House in Order," only instead of a dead wife ha ing been discovered to have been false to her vo here we have the living wife residing under the sa roof as her husband carrying on an intrigue with husband's friend. It is, of course, a revolting situ tion, and the horror is brought home to the erri wife by the treatment which her husband, a you country squire of inflexible integrity, metes out to poor servant girl who has gone astray, and whom does not take back for the reason that he will n allow anything in the nature of vice to come contact with what he believes to be the beautif purity of his wife. Grace is the name of t heroine, who seeks advice of a clergyma a brother of her husband. He advises co fession as the only means of obtaining h husband's absolution. She writes a letter fu of contrition, detailing the whole sordid story, b as she is about to place it in his hands, the though that he will not forgive her, restrains her, and s suddenly discovers that at last she is madly in lo with her, husband. So she confides in a friend— woman of 35, beautiful to look upon, with a health wide outlook on life—a woman who has been love with "Grace's" husband for fifteen years a borne it with splendid fortitude and fine restrai never by so much as a gesture exposing her sile affection. She advises the wife not to confess— to repent silently and to made up for the wrong by life-long devotion to the man who loves her thoroug ly and sincerely. The mother of the husband, playe by Lady Tree—who lifts it out of the sombre gloo of a domestic tragedy into a comedy every time s appears on the stage. She gives a really wonderf picture of the narrowness of a wife of a coun magnate who, isolated by centuries of exclusivene from the broader influences of life, judges everyth by its importance to the county, and not for y has the stage seen so mordant though unconscious picture of the ridiculous family pride of little coun people. Mr. Somerset Maughan has scored a succe

CIVIL VETERINARY DEPARTMENT.

The Bombay Government have issued the follo ing resolution on the work of the Civil Veterina Department for the past year :—

The Civil Veterinary Department sustained severe loss in the course of the year through the fat accident to Lieut.-Colonel Joslen which occurr only four months after his return from leave t resume his duties as Principal of the Civil Veter nary College, Bombay. The Governor in Council i expressing his regret at Colonel Joslen's untimel death desires to place on record his appreciation o the valuable service rendered by him in the advanc ment of veterinary science in this Presidency.

The administration of the Civil Veterinary Co lege continued to be satisfactory. The decline in th number of pupils is regrettable ; on the other han it is satisfactory to observe that of 60 students passe out in the preceding three years 51 are known t have obtained employment. The increased atten tion paid to bacteriological work is a distinct mar of progress; and the improved equipment wit which the College will be furnished in the nea future, will render possible a further advance in th standard of the scientific training imparted. Th results of the examination reflect credit on th teaching staff.

Government have read with interest Mr. Hewlett careful report on the working of the Civil Veterinar Department. There was a further decrease in th number of outbreaks of rinder-pest and in one distri only did the disease assume serious proportions. I these circumstances the decrease in the number o inoculations performed was inevitable. For ever other form of contagious disease the figures recorde show a distinct increase, which may however be t some extent accounted for by increased accuracy i reporting. Government note with satisfaction that th number of outbreaks of contagious disease attend [illegible] increased fro 356 to 602; and that Veterinary Assistants hav paid special attention to the important duty o collecting and forwarding specimens to the Bomba Veterinary College Laboratory for examinatio and report.

The number of dispensaries increased during th year under report from 32 to 35. The figures show ing the number of cases of non-contagious disease treated by the Veterinary Assistants hardly afford an adequate basis for forming an estimate of the progress made: but Government accept the assurance of the Superintendent that in this direction the utility of the local dispensaries is advancing. The detailed account given of each dispensary affords ample evidence of the zeal and vigilance shown by Mr. Hewlett in supervising this most important branch of the work of the Department. Government note with approbation that Veterinary Assistants are now expected as a matter of routine to attempt to diffuse elementary veterinary knowledge among the people by means of pamphlets, oral instructions and demonstration; and concur with the Superintendent that the Department has made progress along sound lines during the year.

During the year Sind was comparatively free from outbreaks of contagious disease. Major Trydell was unable from causes beyond his control to give to this part of his charge so much attention as it required. A scheme has been sanctioned which will afford assistance to the Superintendent and extend the grant of veterinary aid as soon as funds are available for its introduction.

The Glanders and Farcy Department was efficiently administered.

FACTORIES IN BOMBAY.

THE Government of Bombay have issued the following resolution on the working of the Indian Factories Act during 1909-10:—

An interesting feature of the year was the registration of a bobbin factory at Surat and of a workshop for making agricultural implements in Belgaum, the first of their kind to come under the provisions of the Act.

The number of factories under the control of the Act during the year under report was 555, an increase of five over that of the previous year.

The amount of inspection work performed during the year, both in Bombay and the mofussil, was above the average in quantity and the inspections were carefully carried out.

There has been a steady improvement in the sanitary condition of the mills in general and Government note with satisfaction that the sanitation of the Century Mill in Bombay no longer gives cause for complaint. It is satisfactory that the Factory Department has secured the co-operation of the municipal authorities in enforcing improved sanitary arrangements in the Bombay mills.

The ventilation in many factories is reported to be far from satisfactory, and the Chief Inspector emphasises the urgent necessity for the provision of a standard of ventilation suited to local conditions. The Governor in Council understands that due provision will be made in the rules to be issued when the present Factory Act is amended.

During the year under report wages did not vary greatly from those prevalent during the previous year and there were no labour troubles of importance.

The registers prescribed for use in connection with the employment of children were everywhere maintained with more care, and it is satisfactory to find that in a year in which the supply of child labour was scarce there were only three prosecutions for the wrongful employment of children.

Fencing of machinery was on the whole fairly well attended to. In all 30 fatal accidents were reported against 20 in the previous year, but they were due nearly every instance to the carlessness of operatives, the one notable exception being the fire in the cotton press at Dondaicha which caused the death of six women and inflicted severe injuries on two women and one man. The fire originated in the opener. Government have already asked mill managers not to employ women and children near openers in cotton presses. When the new Factory Act comes into force, legal power will be available to prohibit such employment. The percentage of accidents on the total factory population has risen to ·70, but this is still below the percentages recorded during the preceding ten years with the exception of the preceding year.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

DEAD-LOCK IN THE VETO CONFERENCE.

Notable Opinions of Unionist Papers.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Nov. 10.

In reference to the Veto Conference, Mr. Asquith, speaking at the Guildhall banquet yesterday, said he was afraid he was going to disappoint those who were expecting a statement, but an occasion like that, when men of every party and creed were gathered together, made one realise how infinitely stronger were the ties uniting than the controversies dividing us. The British were a combative race, but our constitutional progress had been, not a course of alternate revolution and reaction, but in the main an even development.

"If the Constitution is to adapt itself to the needs of the Empire," he added "I am confident that we can rely, now as always, on what never failed us in the past, the instinct, judgment, integrity and sagacity of the British people."

LONDON, Nov. 10.

The deadlock in the Veto Conference continues.

Mr. Masterman, speaking at North West-Ham, said that if the Conference broke down it would not be the fault of the conferees, but the unbridgeable gulf between Liberalism and Conservatism.

The Daily Telegraph, to-day, says that as one of the most loyal supporters of the Unionist leaders, it appeals to them to reconsider a difference which is threatening to shipwreck the Conference.

The Standard says that the refusal of the Government's plan of Home Rule will mean the separation of Ireland by the very men, who have fought for twenty years to maintain the Union. The same journal adds that the Unionists will not accept the decision of the Extremists, if the latter are influenced by Mr. Balfour.

The Daily Express says that the failure is due to the pressure of the reactionaries.

LATER.

It is announced that the Cabinet will meet on Monday and a possibility of compromise with regard to the deadlock on the Veto question is thus left open to the last moment. Another meeting of the Veto Conference was held to-day.

Britain and Persia.

LONDON, Nov. 10.

Mr. Asquith at the Guildhall referred to the Persian question in the following terms:—

"The Government has done nothing in Persia inconsistent with her independence or integrity. If the Persian Government seek the good-will of her neighbours, their advances will meet with a ready response: but if their attitude is helpless, and hostile confusion and chaos will ensue which will endanger Persia herself and every interest there. In such an event, we must reserve the right to adopt measures necessary to protect British interests."

Armaments.

Mr. Asquith deplored the growth of armaments, but was not without hope that the growing pressure of public opinion everywhere in the world result in good political feeling among the Powers, that would put a term to the wasteful and disastrous competition.

AMERICAN ELECTIONS.

Republicans' Narrow Majority.

LONDON, Nov. 10.

Reuter wires from New York that the Republicans have won a narrow majority in Senate, where six Insurgent Republicans hold the balance. The feature of the elections is the defeat of candidates specially supported by Mr. Roosevelt. The latter has sustained enormous loss of prestige and is now reduced to the position of leader of a faction.

The Insurgent Republican, Mr. Johnson, defeated the Democrat in the contest for the Governorship of California, by a plurality of fifty thousand. Insurgent Republicans have carried the entire State ticket.

Mr. Clark, the prospective Democratic Speaker of the Congress, says the first great duty of the Democrats is the reduction of the tariff to a revenue basis.

The Lesson of Force.

NEW STRIKE IN ABERDARE VALLEY.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Nov. 9.

Representatives of the South Wales miners, after a conference at the Board of Trade, telegraphed to the miners to suspend hostilities; also to provide men to bring up the horses from the pits, where they are threatened with suffocation and starvation.

Mr. Asquith, in his Guildhall speech said that the violence in South Wales could not be too deeply deplored and condemned. The State would not hesitate to put at the disposal of the local authorities any force necessary to suppress lawlessness and prevent violence.

The Miners' Federation has passed a resolution calling on Mr. Churchill to withdraw the troops from South Wales.

LONDON, Nov. 10.

The presence of a strong body of troops and police has overawed the strikers, and everything is quiet in South Wales.

GERMAN CRITICISM OF BRITISH ARMY.

Sir John French's Speech.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Nov. 10.

At the Guildhall banquet Sir John French, responding for the Army, denounced the unscrupulous attempts in England to discredit the leaders, officers and men of the first line. They were based generally on unfounded statements and false conclusions of a German ex-officer. He wished to assure the military brethren of the great German Empire that we were far from thinking that the settlements of the ex-officer in any way reflected their sentiments. British and German soldiers had always been and he hoped would always be, on terms of the utmost friendship and mutual esteem.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE IN BENGAL.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CALCUTTA, Nov. 10.

Sir Edward Baker, in unveiling a portrait of Sir Andrew Fraser in the Agricultural College at Sabur, said that it was under his direction that Mr. Oldham, then Director of Agriculture, drew up a scheme for the formation of a separate agricultural department, the leading features of which were: (1) the establishment of experimental farms in each of the homogeneous tracts of the province; (2) the creation of district and divisional associations to stimulate local interest in practical agriculture, and (3) the establishment of an Agricultural College.

It was at first thought that this last requirement would be adequately supplied by the Research Institute at Pusa, but when it developed into an Imperial Institution for advanced teaching, Sir Andrew Fraser realised that the establishment of a provincial Agricultural College was necessary for the solution of agricultural problems and for the scientific training of men to be employed for the furtherance of agricultural interests in Bengal. He pushed the matter with characteristic vigour, and the sanction of the Government of India and the Secretary of State was obtained a few months before he left. He laid the foundation-stone of the College buildings, the first session of which was opened a few days ago.

KHULNA POLITICAL GANG CASE.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

KHULNA, Nov. 10.

Some sensational evidence was recorded yesterday during the hearing of the Khulna political gang case, when the approver Upendra deposed to four specific cases of dacoity committed by the accused. He said that when commiting a dacoity they use to cry "Allahallah and in order that the owners of the house might be misled into by thinking that the dacoity had been committed by Mahomedans, they used to call each other by Mahomedan names. They purchased arms and ammunition with money looted in dacoities. Witness said that the object of the gang was to realise funds by dacoity in order to serve the mother-country and free it from the British yoke. Witness once went to steal dynamite from a magazine in a hill near Thalda, but came back empty handed as there was no dynamite there. The case is proceeding.

DERA GHAZI KHAN

Difficulties of Removal.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

LAHORE, Nov. 10,

It appears that there has been some trouble in removing to the new site of Dera Ghazi Khan. A petition, signed by over 200 residents of Dera Ghazi Khan, has been sent to the Lieutenant-Governor, complaining of the forcible pulling down of the temporary abodes of people near the old city by the police, and the unsuitability of the new site for residential purposes on account of the difficulties of labour, of procuring good drinking water, and the general insecurity there, owing to the existence of Beluch tribes in the vicinity.

The Sessions Judge of Dacca yesterday resumed the further hearing of the Dacca Shooting Case, when the complainant, Sarat Chunder Ghose, was cross-examined by the defence. The witness will be re-examined to-day.

THE VICEROY'S TOUR.

Visit to Benares.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

ALLAHABAD, Nov. 9.

Among the company gathered round the site of the future Proclamation Pillar at yesterday's ceremony, there was one person at least who was present when the Queen's Proclamation was read on the same spot by the first Viceroy, Lord Canning in 1858. This was Rai Bahadur Lala Ram Charan Das, then a lad, who now for many years past has been a foremost citizen of Allahabad. In fitting recognisation of this interesting coincidence, Rai Bahadur was specially introduced to their Excellencies.

Before leaving, the Viceregal party visited the Welcome Club and the different courts in the Exhibition in a deluge of rain. Lady Minto and Lady Eileen Elliott attended a Purdah party in the ladies' court.

BENARES, November 10.

Owing to heavy rain the Viceroy's proposed trip down the river to see the Ghat had to be abandoned. At 11-30 a. m. His Excellency received an address of welcome from the Benares Municipal Board to which His Excellency replied, after which His Excellency received a deputation from the Hewett Kshatrya School at 12-30. The Viceroy received a visit from His Highness the Maharajah and at 4 p.m. Their Excellencies motored to a Garden party given by Mr. Lovett at the Commissioner's house. This evening a banquet in honour of His Excellency will be given at Nandesar House.

LATER.

The reply of the Viceroy to the address from the Benares Municipal Board was as follows:—"Gentlemen, I heartily thank you for your kindly words of welcome to Lady Minto and myself. This is my first visit to your city. I have nnfortunately been prevented on more than one occasion from coming amongst you and I cannot say how grievously disappointed I should have been if I had been unable to do so before I left India. I have long looked forward to visiting Benares, the ancient and sacaed city of the Hindus; sacred also the followers of Budha, for, as you tell me, it was at Sarnath that he first preached to his disciples. Benares has been renowned too from time immemorial for its learned men and still retains the reputation of old days. The fame of its Pundits still remains together with the distinction of its Sanscrit schools, whilst two colleges, the Queen's and the Central Hindu, and other educational establishments, represent the interests of modern institutions. Moreover, you have every reason to be satisfied with the industrial prosperity of your city, for its silk and brecade and beautiful brass work are celebrated in the world's markets. Your Municipal administration has gained for itself a well deserved reputation. It has supplied the town with good filtered water and drainage system and has done much for the relief of sickness, in which direction the King Edward the Seventh Hospital is your principal institution, the foundation-stone of which was laid by the King-Emperor. It is encouraging to know that the loyalty and good behaviour of Benares has been remarkable for many years. No popular disturbance has taken place, I believe, since 1891, and thoroughly good feeling prevails between the various communities. I much regret, Gentlemen, that my visit is unavoidably so hurried, but I hope you will convey to your fellow-citizens the sincerest appreciation of Lady Minto and myself for the warmth of the welcome to us. I only wish our stay amongst them could have been prolonged.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CALCUTTA, Nov. 10.

This afternoon Mr. C. F. Payne, District Magistrate of Howrah, recorded the statement of Mrs. A Bennett, grandmother of the accused F. Bennet in connection with the alleged murder of Sergt. McDermott on September 26th last. Mrs. Bennett, an old lady, 72 years of age said she asked the accused Bennett to procure strychnine for the purpose of killing cats which had become very troublesome to her. Bennett purchased 5 to 6 grains of strychnine from Mrs. Frank Ross, chemist, for the purpose and gave it to her on or about September 24th last. She put the whole of the poison into three chops prepared by her and killed two cats with the poison meat. She gave Bennet eight annas to purchase the poison and she believed this amount entered in her daily sundry account.

DEATH OF MRS. MONK.

Proprietress of Hotels in Calcutta.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CALCUTTA, Nov. 10.

The death occurred to-day in Calcutta of Mrs. Monk, the famous proprietress of hotels and boarding houses in Calcutta, and perhaps the best known European woman in India. Mrs Monk, or rather Mrs. Danby, only arrived in Calcutta by the s.s. "Caledonia" on Saturday last. She suffered considerably throughout the voyage and was under the care of Colonel Green, I. M. S. She was very ill on her arrival in Calcutta and it was surmised that the effects of sea-sickness had strained her heart. She was treated by Colonel Green and Dr. Caddy and made a slight rally in a day or two. She remained, however, in a very weak condition and two nurses were placed in attendance on her. This afternoon, when she was being raised up in bed by the nurses, she suddenly expired from heart-failure.

Mrs. Monk was a very remarkable woman of Irish descent, her husband an Army Officer, died many years ago, leaving her destitute. She began by opening a boarding-house in Chowringhee something like forty years ago. It is said that her first clients were Germans and that her impulsive Irish heart always led her to show special favour to young Germans ever after. At all events the boarding-house proved so successful that she opened another and another until the European residential quarter was studded with houses bearing the magic name of Monk. Nor was Mrs. Monk content to be merely a name. She was a personality. She knew all her clients personally. Some of them got on well with her and some did not, but one and all bore testimony to the fact that in spite of her ability to drive a hard bargain she was essentially a kind and warm-hearted woman. No one who was ill or poor was ever harshly treated by Mrs. Monk. In course of time Mrs, Monk's activities extended to the purchase of the grand hotel, which she made one of the most successful establishment in the East, only selling it a year or two ago for a large sum. She acquired the Imperial Hotel and was still the owner of that and of half a dozen boarding-houses at the time of her death. Mrs. Monk was associated with other businesses, but it was as a boarding-house and hotel proprietress that she was best known in Calcutta and in fact all over India.

GUN-RUNNER'S VICISSITUDES.

Reform in the Amir's Army.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

ALLAHABAD, Nov. 10.

What is regarded as the actual position in reference to gun-running is described thus by correspondent with considerable experience on the Frontier, The North-Western tribesmen were badly hit over the arms traffic this year, and the feeling in consequence is intense. Unthrifty at the best of times, their delegates were entrusted with funds which had been begged, borrowed and no doubt stolen by the tribes, and which amounted to between one and two lakhs of rupees. Nearly every anna of this money has been lost by being literally thrown into the sea. It can be imagined with what bitterness the return of their delegates with scarcely a rifle of any kind and penniless, was greeted. The next step, we may expect, is systematic raiding undertaken by the tribesmen living beyond the Frontier, with the avowed intention of obtaining a forcible restitution for their losses. Indeed I have an instance in mind, where this has actually occurred.

It is stated with reference to the Army in Afghanistan that the regular army has never been properly trained, as three systems of drill are in force. Some regiments are taught English drill in a modified form, others are under Turkish instructors, and in the outlying provinces the officers adopt Afghan methods of a primitive kind. At Kabul itself all the troops are now practically passing through the hands of Turkish non-commissioned officers, who entered the service of the Amir a year or two ago. The improvement has been so marked that Sardar Inayat Ullah Khan, Commander-in-Chief, recently proposed that an extensive system of reliefs should be introduced, but owing to great expense involved, and the unwillingness of men to serve far from their homes, the Amir has decided against any changes in the existing garrisons. However he has ordered a general adoption of the Turkish system of drill and instructors are accordingly to be sent to the principal cantonments in the provinces. It is doubtful whether the scheme will be successful.

MADRAS ASSURANCE CASE.

A CHAT ABOUT BOOKS.

THE REST CURE, by W. B. Maxwell—(Methuen)—Mr. Maxwell's books are looked forward to by an appreciative public as something out of the common. Something that can be read and enjoyed. His knowledge of the inner workings of the human mind are extraordinary. "The Rest Cure" is the best of his works so far. Although there were one or two passages in "The Guarded Flame" which could hardly be surpassed. "The Rest Cure" might be called the life history of Mr. John Barnard, M. P., a most ambitious man, who succeeded in everything he undertook. He married well—Lady Edith Morille—daughter of Lord Rathkeole, but ambition came in the way of his happiness. "If I was a rich idle man, I would be with you always" he said to his wife. "I am never so happy as when I am with you" and this was strictly true, but just now he was working harder than ever—"double tides" as he called it. So in later years they drifted apart for a time, causing him much worry. He becomes overworked and goes for a "Rest Cure." It is all rather sad, but terribly true. Instead of enjoying each day, as it came, surrounding those he loved with sympathy and help, he strained everywhere and every bit of strength, to amass a fortune which he never lived to realise. "With regard to money-making, his ambition had of late increased. He wanted now to come out of his second stage with half instead of a quarter of a million."

A WOMAN IN CANADA, by Mrs. George Cran—(John Milne).—In the present day when one hears so much about emigration to Canada, Mrs. Cran's book ought to be received with interest. The great influence she has with women may be gathered from her writings. "At last it is borne in upon me that there are no women on the prairies except the wives and daughters of farmers, and they are scarce enough. But travelling as I am doing at this stage of my visit, over soil so rich, I am constrained to wonder if there is any reason why women should not come out and work it as well as men. No one questions its fertility and abundant profits, nor the fact that hundreds of healthy English-women are encumbering the old country and leading profitless lives. . . ." These words should open up vistas of possibilities. Mrs. Cran, by the way, has the subject so much at heart that she offers to tell all she can to any woman who, "reading this, wants to go to a beautiful country and carve out her own fortune from its deep loam." Mrs. Cran also has a word in season to say anent nursing facilities in the Far West. While in Canada she took up warmly the cause of women dwelling in isolated home-steads, and endeavoured to wake up in the authorities a greater sense of responsibility towards them. In default of a better scheme, she advocates an itinerant body of trained women. This is only a sample of Mrs. Cran's practical attitude towards the future of women in Canada.

REWARDS AND FAIRIES, by Rudyard Kipling—(Macmillan).—Is a further collection of stories, introducing Dan and Una, only grown a little older, old favourites in "Puck of Pook's Hile." These stories are again told to them by Robin Goodfellow who introduces many rather interesting people. A knight of the Norman Conquest, a young Centurion of a Roman Legion stationed in England and a builder and decorator of King Henry VII's time. Each chapter has a small poem in Rudyard Kipling's inimitable style. The following is one, the "Looking-Glass":—

"Queen Bess was Harry's daughter!"

The Queen was in her chamber, and she was middling old,
Her petticoat was satin and her stomacher was gold.
Backwards and forwards and sideways did she pass,
Making up her mind to face the cruel looking-glass.
The cruel looking-glass that will never show a lass
As comely or as kindly or as young as once she was!
The Queen was in her chamber, a-combing of her hair,
There came Queen Mary's spirit and it stood behind her chair,
Singing, 'Backwards and forwards and sideways may you pass,
But I will stand behind you till you face the looking-glass.
The cruel looking-glass that will never show a lass
As lovely or unlucky or as lonely as I was!'
The Queen was in her chamber, a-weeping very sore,
There came Lord Leicester's spirit and it scratched upon the door,
Singing, 'Backwards and forwards and sideways may you pass,
But I will walk beside you till you face the looking-glass.
The cruel looking-glass that will never show a lass
As hard and unforgiving or as wicked as you was!'
The Queen was in her chamber; her sins were on her head;
She looked the spirits up and down and statelily she said:
'Backwards and forwards and sideways though I've been,
Yet I am Harry's daughter and I am England's Queen!'
And she faced the looking-glass (and whatever else there was),
And she saw her day was over and she saw her beauty pass
In the cruel looking-glass that can always hurt a lass
More hard than any ghost there is or any man there was!

THE DEVIL AND THE DEEP SEA, by Rhoda Broughton—(Macmillan)—The uncertainty of the ending of Miss Broughton's present work is clever; Did she or did she not? being the final words. In a hotel on the Mediterranean, Susan Field met John Greene, who was a great invalid and excited her compassion. A strong friendship eventually springs up between them, when he suddenly disappears. They meet again and discover how attached they are to each other, when she finds out that he is a Liar, Libertine and Swindler. She unfortunately had a clouded past, her father being in prison. Hence the ending. He pleads "you might risk it and stick to me. You have not any one in the world that cares a straw about you, neither have I, For God's sake stick to me."

AMONG golfers, and the frequenters of links, the name of Mr. Bernard Darwin is well known and honoured. For Mr. Darwin was last year in the semi-final of the Amateur Championship, has written widely and wisely upon the royal and ancient game, and generally enjoys the reputation of knowing all that it is worth while to know about the art of the driver and the brassey. Messrs. Duckworth and Co. are therefore to be accounted lucky in having persuaded Mr. Darwin to write for them an authoritative volume upon "The Golf Courses of the British Isles," which is shortly to be published with a series of pictures by Mr. Harry Rountree. The choice of an artist for such a book was obviously a difficult problem, since it was essential that the hand which plied the pencil should also know how to wield the club. In Mr. Rountree the publishers believe that they have discovered just the right man, since the artist is a good golfer himself, and knows every links which Mr. Darwin describes and criticises. For the benefit of those who, while they are enthusiastic lovers of the game, have no aspiration towards championship honours, a chapter is added by an anonymous "Long Handicap" player, who writes for the special edification of that class of golfer who cannot afford more than one day a week for the claims of his favourite pastime.

SIR OLIVER LODGE is, perhaps, next to Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace, the greatest asset in the modern school of reconciliation between the tenets of religion and science. During the course of this month Messrs. Methuen and Co. will publish Sir Oliver's new book "Reason and Belief," in which the old ground is once more covered by a lively and penetrating intellect. The first part of the book, we understand, will consist of a study of the doctrine of the Incarnation, while the second will deal with the most reasonable attitude towards the Old Testament, regarded in the light of modern theories of evolution. The volume concludes with a defence of the author's entire standpoint against the possible attacks of critics of both extremes of thought.

AN important art-work will issue, during the next few weeks, from the offices of Messrs. Lawrence and Jellicoe, to whose taste and judgment this class of literature already owes no small debt. The present work is a study of "French Line Engravings of the Late XVIIIth Century," and the joint authors are Mr. Basil Dighton and Mr. H. W. Lawrence. No fewer than eighty-two plates have been engraved for the volume, including practically all the finest prints of that period, which covers the thirty years before the outbreak of the French Revolution. The publishers think that justice has not hitherto been done to the excellence of the French engraving of that generation, while there is much historical interest in the subjects which they illustrate, and in the treatment which they reveal. Only 1,000 copies be printed and the price will be five guineas a copy.

JUDGE PARRY, it will be remembered, was editor more than twenty years ago, of the love-letters of Dorothy Osborne, and he will contribute an introduction to a book, announced by Messrs. George Allen and Sons, as a sequel to that remarkable and romantic document. This new book is a collection of the "Letters of Martha Lady Giffard," prepared by Mrs. Edith Longe, and it will include many of Dorothy Osborne's letters to her husband, Sir William Temple, written after their marriage. For Lady Giffard was Temple's only sister, and her correspondence will also be found to contain many intimate references to the much disputed story of Swift and Stella.

LOVERS of animals may be recommended to look out for Mr. W. Percival Westell's new volume, just issued from the house of Mr. J. M. Dent. "The Book of the Animal Kingdom, as it is called, will treat of the over 500 varieties of mammals, with fourteen coloured and 260 half-tone illustration, chiefly from photographs by Mr. W. S. Berridge. An attempt has been made to avoid all dry definitions, and to treat an elaborate subject in a straight forward and popular fashion.

NASIK CONSPIRACY CASE.

ON Thursday, at the Bombay High Court, the further hearing was resumed of the Nasik Conspiracy Case, before a Special Tribunal composed of the Hon'ble the Chief Justice Sir Basil Scott, the Hon'ble Sir N. G. Chandavarkar, and the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Heaton.

Sakharam Ballal Joshi, examined by Mr. Weldon said he had known the accused Trimbuk Marathe for about four years and a half. He remembered Marathe having given him a bundle, sewn up in a piece of cloth, about a month or two before the arrest of Marathe. The latter asked him to hand it over to Karandikar and to give him a message from him that he was to hand over the parcel to a man who came from him (Marathe). Witness accordingly handed over the parcel to Balkrishna Shanker Karandikar and also passed the message on to him.

Cross-examined by Mr. Baptista, witness said he had no idea as to the contents of the parcel, which was so wrapped up that he could not tell if it contained metal, by feeling it.

Cross-examined by Mr. Rangneker, witness said it would be untrue if Marathe said that he himself gave the parcel to Karandikar.

Balkrishna Shanker Karandikar, examined by Mr. Weldon, said he was Assistant Manager of the glass factory at Talegaon. He had known the accused Trimbuk Gangadhar Marathe for three or four years. He also knew Joshi, the last witness, from whom he received in December, 1909, in Bombay a parcel, and who gave him a message that he was to hand over the parcel to a man who called from Marathe. Subsequently a man came to him at Talegaon. After his arrest, he (the witness) came to know the name of the man, which was Khare. He opened the parcel, which contained a black pistol. Immediately after, he handed over the parcel to the man. He saw Marathe for the first time when the police brought him (Marathe) to Talegaon. When he was brought there by the police, Marathe asked him where the parcel was, to which witness replied that he had handed it over to the man who had called from him. Witness' room was searched by the police and he was then taken to Poona and subsequently to Bombay by the police. At the latter place a man was shown to him at the police office, whom at first he could not identify, but latterly he said he thought it was the same man that he had given the bundle to. He had heard of the death of Mr. Jackson at Nasik. He knew of it when he was arrested and brought to Bombay.

Sadashiv Vidyadhar Karandikar, a convict under the Arms Act, deposed that he had received a pistol and cartridges from the accused Brahmagiri Buva at Poona. When he was given the bundle, he was told it contained silver. When it was opened in the presence of a 'punch,' it was found to contain the pistol and cartridges.

Cross-examined by Mr. Setna, the witness said that by feeling the parcel nobody could say that it contained the pistol.

Bhikaji Laxaman Kudkarkar, examined by Mr. Weldon, said he was a clerk in the General Post Office, Bombay. He knew Krishnaji Gopal Kurve, who was an accused in the Jackson Murder case. He got a locked leather-bag from him last year in Bombay. Subsequently he gave the bag to the police when they asked for it. On the bag being opened, a bundle was found in it containing two pistols.

Cross-examined by Mr. Baptista, the witness said he had not joined any secret societies, and he knew nothing about them.

Sub-Inspector Narayan Govind, of the Bombay Criminal Investigation Department, deposed to his having arrested the accused Vishnu Mahadeo Bhatt in January last in Bombay.

The further hearing was adjourned.

BOMBAY CORPORATION.

The Improvement Trust Act Provisions.

A MEETING of the Bombay Municipal Corporation was held yesterday afternoon in the Municipal Hall, Dr. K. E. Dadachanji, the President, occupying the chair.

In accordance with previous notice, the Hon'ble Mr. Ebrahim Rahimtulla moved: "That a Committee consisting of the Councillors which he named at the meeting be appointed to prepare a representation to Government inviting their attention to the financial provisions of the Calcutta Improvement Bill now before the Bengal Legislative Council and requesting them to provide with the sanction of the Government of India, similar financial assistance for the Bombay Improvement Trust, so that the liability upon the citizens of Bombay may not be proportionately greater than what is proposed to be imposed upon the residents of Calcutta."

The Hon'ble Mr. Ibrahim in support of his motion said that the provisions of the Calcutta Trust Act were more liberal than those of the Bombay Improvement Trust Act. Those provisions compared so favourably that Bombay felt a bit envious of its sister City, Calcutta. The Government created a body for carrying out sanitary improvements in the City at the cost of the ratepayer and the taxpayer. The Corporation agreed to the creation of such a body, all the while relying on a very liberal and substantial financial assistance of the Government. Though, Calcutta had suffered from plague, that malady did not assume those proportions which it did in Bombay; the claims of Bombay for sanitary improvements and help in that direction were enormously higher, and the gigantic schemes undertaken by the Bombay Improvement Trust would be found a good deal larger than those that Calcutta would have to undertake. In spite of the vehement opposition of Mr. Wacha, the Corporation readily agreed to the huge liability in consideration of the financial assistance which was promised them of the new body of which four elected representatives of the Corporation and the Municipal Commissioner ex-officio were to be members. The Act authorised the new body to make any amount of expenditure—unlimited by a majority of the Board of Trustees with the sanction of the Government. The Corporation accepted the position honestly relying on the assistance promised. Lord Sandhurst, the then Governor of Bombay, did his best to give large and liberal assistance as far as possible. On the strength of that the Corporation accepted such huge liability. The burden was to be thrown upon the taxpayer and the City. The difference in the proposed Trust Act of Calcutta and that of Bombay was this: that it was provided in the Bombay Act that at any time if the Improvement Trust failed to satisfy certain demand, the Accountant-General o Bombay would pay it and recover the same from the Municipal Funds. The municipality was left to impose special tax on the citizens of the city for the demand. But the Calcutta Improvement Trust Act provided that if the Trust failed to pay, the Accountant-General would pay and take the money from Municipal funds. The Municipal money would be recouped not by an additional tax, but by attaching the Trust assets and properties. The Calcutta citizens might be well proud of this consideration shown them. In conclusion Mr. Ibrahim urged that the financial scheme should be recast so as to afford equal distribution. The Municipal contribution should be reduced and contributions must be taken from the Provincial and Imperial revenue and from trade.

Dr. Dinshah Bamonji Master seconded the proposition.

Dr. Jehangir J. Cursetji supported the proposition remarking that it was but fair that the burden of expenditure should be borne by the Provinces the Empire and by trade.

Mr. Wadia supported the proposition because he said it was desirable that the matter be discussed in a committee. He averred, however, that the Trust had done great good to the city and in return for their contribution of seventeen lakhs the Corporation had received from them roads which were valued at ninety lakhs.

Dr. Sukhia was in favour of Mr. Ibrahim's proposition which he said was very guardedly worded.

The proposition was agreed to.

PROPOSED TRAMWAY EXTENSIONS.

Dr. S. S. Batliwalla moved the following propositions of which he had given previous notice:—"That the Commissioner be requested to invite the Tramways Company to consider the desirability of extending the tramway service from the Parel terminus to Dadar in the interests of the residents north of Vincent Road as well as of the Company."

Dr. Sukhia moved as an amendment that Dr. Batliwala's proposition be referred to the Tramway Committee.

Dr. Batliwalla withdrew his proposition in favour of the amendment which was agreed to.

The Corporation adjourned to Monday next.

GOLF IN BOMBAY.

Calcutta Silver Medal.

THERE was a considerable falling off in the standard of play in the competition for the Calcutta medal which was brought to a finish yesterday morning when the second round was played. Only fifteen competitors made any return. Ferrers Nicholson who on the first day had played a splendid round of 39 and led the field was among those who made no return, while Macdonald who was second on the first day's play took 58 strokes yesterday. The winner proved to be Harwood with a nett score of 82 for the eighteen holes. This player is a very regular golfer and lately has improved his game a great deal. On the first day he took 52 strokes for the nine holes but yesterday he improved by six strokes and returned a card of 46 getting the last hole in three. The best score sent in yesterday was by M. F. Nicholson, who did the nine holes in 42. He played steady golf all round, doing the first three holes in five each. He finished the last six in 27 taking three to the eighth and a five to the last hole. Result:—

STANDARD BAROMETER READING.

The reading of the barometer at the Colaba Observatory corrected for index error and reduced to 32° F. and for Calcutta standard at 8 a. m. (local time) on the 10th November was 29·872 inches. The height of Observatory barometer cistern above zero of the tide gauge at Apollo Bunder is 47 feet. The height of tide in the stream above zero of the tide gauge was 11 feet at 6 a.m. (local time). The temperature correction for a mercurial barometer, supposing the reading to be 30·00 inches and that of the attached thermometer 80° F. will be ·14 inch and this will be higher and lower by ·01 inch for each 4 degrees. In the case of the aneroid no temperature correction is required. Should the height of barometer cistern, either mercurial or aneroid above zero of tide gauge be different from 47 feet, it will read higher or lower by ·01 inch for each 11 feet. The readings given above are distinct in from those given in the daily weather report, to which different corrections have been applied.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

SIMLA, Nov. 10.

The following Army order has been issued:—

In order to enable British units to maintain a small stock of personal clothing for requirements between periodical indents, the Government of India have decided to allow stores to be obtained on credit from the Army clothing factories to the extent noted below:—

Cavalry units, each Rs. 5,000; Royal Horse Artillery units, Rs. 1,500; Royal Horse Artillery Ammunition Columns, Rs. 150; Royal Field Artillery units, Rs. 1,500; Royal Field Artillery Ammunition Columns, Rs. 500; Royal Garrison Artillery units, Rs. 1,000; Mountain Batteries, Rs. 1,000; Heavy Batteries Rs. 800 and Infantry units Rs. 6,000 each.

The above sums approximately represent one quarter of the annual value of the personal clothing of the men comprised in the unit. As in the case of necessaries commanding officers will be personally responsible for the value of stocks so maintained, and the procedure in accounting for them will be similar to that prescribed for necessaries.

ALL Collectors and Deputy Commissioners in Sind meet to-day on board the Commissioner's Yacht off Cotri to discuss certain questions in connection with the record of rights.

"ON LIKING ONE'S JOB."

Is it Necessary to be Miserable in Doing One's Work?

Mr. H. G. Wells has asked how the world's necessary work could be relieved from boredom in doing it. Mr S M Croders, in the "Atlantic Monthly," has a very vivacious paper "On Liking One's Job," in which he throws some light on the problem of what makes work a pleasure, and denies that it is necessary to be miserable in doing one's work, or even in doing good!

"Among the most persistent of my early dreams was that of being a missionary," says Mr. Crothers, "I wanted to be a missionary before it occurred to me that I had any particular doctrine to communicate or manner of life to recommend. Indeed, I now perceive that my call was more of Nature than of Grace.

A BOY'S DESIRE.

"I wanted to be a missionary because I longed to go on missionary journeys. The call of the wild, the lure of the unknown, the fascination of terrestrial mystery, takes many forms. It is all a part of the romance of Geography, which has survived even the invention of maps. "When one is eleven and going on twelve, there comes a great longing to go to the Antipodes, to visit No Man's Land, to wander through forsaken cities, to climb lonely towers, and to look out through

'Magic casements opening on the foam
Of perilous seas.'

"In different generation this demand has been variously met. The institutions of civilisation, besides their primary objects, have had the secondary function of satisfying the youthful desire to go into a far country, a desire not of the Prodigal alone. Patriotism, Religion, Commerce, each has its finger-post pointing to the unknown."

WAS GRANDMOTHER RIGHT?

When the writer of the article wanted to be a missionary because he had heard one who "had crossed deserts in caravans and had endured perils of robbers"; when he fell in love with Persia and read Thomas Moore's "Lalla Rookh" and the "Arabian Nights," and was saturated with the glow and colour of the East, his grandmother checked him, for she said: "You must not go as missionary to Persia for if you do the Persians will convert you." Now he asks, "Was my grandmother right in thinking that my pleasure in Persia was likely to be a detriment to my usefulness? Was I less likely to do good to the Persians because I thought well of them to begin with? And would it have been a waste of time if, after a terms of years, I had partly converted the Persians and the Persians had partly converted me? May there not be a profitable reciprocity in spiritual influence?

MUST DUTY BE UNPLEASANT.

"In attempting to answer such questions we encounter the prejudice which exists among the more moral and intellectual classes against mixed motives. There seems something especially meritorious in the more unpleasing manifestations of duty, as then we are free from any doubts as to its being the genuine article. If the duty happens not to be disagreeable, we try to make it appear so. Thus a patriotic citizen, being nominated for an office of dignity, is careful to inform his constituents that he accepts at the sacrifice of his personal desires, which are all for a strictly private life. "Biographers of missionaries, philanthropists, reformers and all kinds of altruists, seem to think it necessary to do something like this. They represent their heroes as doing all sorts of disagreeable things which they do not want to do. They set up one single dignified motive, and severely eliminate all the little subsidiary motives that grow around it.

MISTAKES ABOUT THE STRONGMAN.

"The strongman rejoicing to run a race is praised for his disinterested virtue. 'Brave fellow! How noble he is in his self-forgetting zeal! There he goes, through all the heat and dust, when he might be here sitting in a rocking-chair.' The sympathetic and tearful admirer would feel that you were attempting to pull his hero down from the high moral pedestal if you were to say that rocking in a chair was an acquired taste which the strongman does not as yet possess. He prefers to run. He has an excess of animal spirits which must be worked off some way. He rejoices to run, partly because he is alive, and partly because he has a worthy goal presented to him.

WHY WE MUST ENJOY OUR WORK.

"So far as I have been able to observe, such mixed motives are the ones that take men furthest. Altruism is no exception to the general rule that a man does good work only when he likes his job. The football player doesn't mind his incidental bruises. The fisherman rejoices in his tribulations, and no one thinks it strange. Why should not the altruist get the same sportsmanlike pleasure out of the incidents of his work? Human nature is so constituted that it demands that duty be mixed with pleasure. We cannot abide an altruist who does not enjoy himself, and who has not a sportsmanlike spirit. We resent his attempt to monopolise brotherly kindness.

GREAT HELPERS OF MANKIND.

"The great helpers of mankind have been men who were shrewd enough to see this condition and frankly to accept it. They have turned their duty into pleasure, and then claimed for themselves only the inalienable right to the pursuit of happiness. If in this pursuit they incidentally helped their neighbours, they hoped that this would not prejudice anyone against them. A disciple came to Confucius, and, with that admirable directness in asking questions characteristic of Chinamen, enquired, 'Master, are you a sage?' Confucius answered, "No, I am not a sage; I am only one who learns without satiety and who teaches without getting tired.' There was John Wesley. His 'Journal,' with its record of indefatigable labour, is one of the cheerest books in the language. What a rare good time he had! When he was eighty-seven he could say, 'I do not remember to have felt lowness of spirits for a quarter of an hour since I was born.' For more than sixty years this indefatigable pleasure-seeker had been doing as he pleased. Up every day in time to preach at five o'clock in the morning; then over the hills or through the pleasant lanes to preach again at about the time lazy citizens were ready for breakfast; off again, on horseback or by chaise, or in a lumbering stage-coach for more preaching to vast crowds of sinners—just the kind of sinners he liked to preach to. Between sermons he refreshed his mind with all sorts and conditions of books. When we read Borrow's 'Bible in Spain' we feel that Borrow would have gone to Spain any way, even if there had been no Bibles to distribute. Nevertheless, his natural affinity for gypsies, muleteers, and picturesque vagabonds of all sorts enabled him to carry the Bible into out-of-the-way places which would never have been dreamed of by zealous persons of sedentary habits. There is always something to be said in favour of the strong bent of the spirit, whether it tends toward Connecticut or Persia."

THE LADIES' CORNER.

MULTI-COLOURED SCHEMES.

The embroideries in wooden and tiny glass beads, mingled together to form Oriental masses of colour which make summer Paisleys pale in comparison, are in many cases so beautiful and gorgeous that it is little to be wondered at that the dressmakers take a real delight in their construction, and add thereto such luxurious additions as strips of fur and huge jewelled and domeshaped ornaments. Even those who can afford these gowns, however, must wear them with discretion, for there is no shadow of doubt that they would very soon date the wearer, and after the first few times of wearing them are apt to become well known and a special mark for comment. In spite of these there are evening frocks this season which are returning to very simple ideals, and, in many cases, soft muslins and voiles are treated with light folds or tucks instead of heavier embroideries and added trimmings. There is no doubt that such frocks have the quality of youthfulness about them, but by making a careful choice of colourings, they can be equally well worn by the married woman as by the young girl.

VELVET HEAD-DRESS.

For evening wear the newest fillet, which is calculated to have an immense success this year, is a wide band of snow-white tailless ermine passing round the head just over the forehead and nuque, and crossed by another over the crown of the head. A narrow scroll of embroidery worked on net in tiny mock jewels in a wonderful multi-coloured scheme is applique to the centre of these bands, while a huge jewelled dome holds them together on either side. Naturally enough, this is by no means the lightest and most comfortable of fillets, but it has nevertheless a very handsome and becoming appearance with a dinner dress of velvet in some rich old-world tone and trimmed with narrow strips of ermine. Scarves of velvet tied on one side of the head and finished with a little gold fringe represent another type of fillet which is likewise very high in favour. But if the fillet or cap in some cases is almost bizarre, it is increasing the popularity of a simple coiffure. The hair cannot be dressed with a frame if the fillet is to bind it round closely without very much spoiling the effect. Consequently the manner in which the best results are obtained is to part the hair simply in the middle and dress it quite flat on the top and crown, all the curls of which so many are used nowadays being brought all round the head low down, so that they peep out very attractively under swathing of ninon or crepe of which the scarf is composed.

THE LONDON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

AT the meeting of the Council of the London Chamber of Commerce on Oct. 14, Mr. Stanley Machin presiding, attention was drawn by Lord Avebury to the recent annexation of Corea by Japan, and the following resolution was adopted:—

"That representations, either by deputation or otherwise, be made to the Prime Minister, urging that the undertaking volunteered by Japan not to increase the Corean duties for ten years, may be made permanent. That this resolution be communicated to the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the United Kingdom and to leading Chambers individually with the expression of a hope that they will approve and support the same."

The General Purposes Committee submitted a recommendation, which was agreed to, that a Special Committee be appointed to consider the terms of the Declaration of London (which defines the International Law of Naval Warfare) in view of the fact that it will come before Parliament during the autumn session, and of the desirability of the views of Chambers of Commerce thereon being ascertained and expressed.

It was reported that an informal conference between members of Parliament and a sub-committee of the Chamber relative to the question of the present position of the British Consular Service and the disadvantages of the appointment of foreigners as British Consuls or Vice-Consuls has recently taken place, with the result that the Chamber's representatives had received the sympathetic consideration of the Foreign Office.

BURMESE STUDENTS IN ENGLAND.

The annual meeting of the Burma Society, which has recently been reconstituted on an extended basis, primarily for the benefit of young Burmans studying in this country, was held at the Indian centre, 21 Cromwell Road, on Oct. 19. Sir Frederic Fryer, the president, was in the chair. The annual report, adopted on the motion of the Chairman, seconded by Sir Thirkell White, ex-Lieutenant-Governor of Burma, stated that the principle that a separate organisation, independently of the Indian centre, was required, had been supported by the Burma Government and accepted by the Secretary of State in Council. Fifty-two Burmans and fifty-nine Europeans now or in the past connected with Burma had joined the Society, and from firms and private individuals generous donations had been obtained. The Chairman said they had not yet got at home of their own, because they were awaiting a reply from the Secretary of State for India to a letter asking for an annual subsidy. It was practically certain that the Secretary of State would give an annual grant, and the only point was what the amount would be. Burmans were proud of themselves as a nation, and they had no wish to be confused with the many different races and communities of the Indian Peninsula. (Cheers.) He expressed a hope that a branch of the society would be formed in Rangoon to co-operate with the parent body and give it financial assistance.

FROM "SERIUS" TO "OLYMPIC."

One cannot help wondering what the skipper of the "Sirius," the first passenger steamship to cross the Atlantic, seventy-two years ago, would have thought of the White Star Leviathan, the Olympic, launched recently at Belfast, if he could have seen her. The "Sirius," quite a marvel in her day, was a vessel of 412 tons, 208ft. in length, and 25 feet broad. The Olympic has a tonnage of 45,000 (nearly 110 times as great as that of the "Sirius"), and a displacement of nearly 60,000 tons. She is 840ft, long, 136ft. longer than the Oceanic, and 50ft, longer that the Mauretania. To walk three times round her would be a good miles tramp, while her funnels are so large that it would be an easy matter to run a train through them if place horrizontally. Her anchors weigh 15 tons apiece; her propeller 22 tons; another rudder, 100 tons. The "Sirius" carried five passengers on her first historic voyage across the Atlantic, which took her nineteen days. The Olympic can easily accommodate 4,000 passengers, and her crossing will take a little over five days.

DO DEANS RESIGN?

Dr. Jex-Blake, by resigning the deanery of Wells, will by no means "create a precedent," as some people apparently believe. Deans are not a retiring race, and rarely display the virtue of resignation, but there are at least two examples of these dignitaries relinquishing their pleasant positions. Less than twenty years ago Dr. Liddell, the great Greek lexicographer, and Ruskin's "type of nobly presented Englishmen," resigned the deanery of Christ Church, Oxford Liddell, in his letter to Lord Salisbury, expressed the grim wish "to walk out of the Deanery rather than be carried out." One of Liddell's predecessors, Dr. Smith, during whose brief reign Gladstone matriculated at the "House," had previously resigned the deanery to Gaisford, in exchange for one of the "golden canonries" of Durham.

"PADDING" THE CENSUS RETURNS.

Civic rivalry, as is well known, is very active across the Atlantic, and seems even to provoke breaches of the law of census-taking. In the recent enumeration in the United States a number of communities were guilty of "padding" their returns. Tacoma, Seattle, and Minneapolis are among the offenders mentioned by name. In the case of Tacoma a recount was ordered, at the result revealed the fact t the original returns were too large by 40 per ent. Investigations are being made into the figures of population sent in from a large number of other towns, and criminal prosecutions are being talked of.

WESLEY'S LATEST HISTORIAN.

Some account is given in the "Methodist Times" rom a French contemporary of M. Augustin Leger whose books on Wesley have gained for their author he degree of Docteur es Letters (D. Lit.) in the University of Paris. Dr. Leger comes of a Catholic amily. After completing his course of studies in he "Ecole Normale," M. Leger became a professor or three years in the University of Montreal. His rdent love for social work led him to study the Salvation Army, and that led him on to study Wesley. A forthcoming volume will relate Wesley's ctivity, and a third will give a summary, and, of ourse, a criticism, of the ideas and doctrine of John Wesley. Dr. Leger is at present Professor of English n the Naval School at Brest, the training school of adets for the French Navy.

PACKS OF HOUNDS.

Discussing the question, "Is Hunting Doomed?" n the "Pall Mall Magazine," Mr. Leonard Willoughby lls us that altogether there are some 456 packs of ounds in the United Kingdom, divided up as llows England and Wales 364, of which 173 are xhounds, 88 harriers, 16 staghounds and 11 drag-ounds, 58 beagles, and 18 otter hounds; Ireland ossesses 25 foxhound packs, 40 harriers, 4 stag, and beagle packs; Scotland has 11 foxhounds and 1 arrier, 3 beagles, and 2 otter packs. These altoge-er make up an approximate total of some 456 cks of hounds. In round figures, the packs which nt the fox and stag or deer number some 9,000 uples of hounds, whilst of harriers and beagles ere are some 3,500 couples of hounds.

HE WORK OF A POOR MAN'S LAWYER.

Giving a "Five Minutes' Talk on the Work of a or Man's Lawyer" at the Claremont Mission stival, Mr. Charles Johnson said poor people came king. "Is my servant-girl a workman?" "I ly went with my son-in-law to borrow £5, and ned a little bit of paper," another would say, and now look what I've got!" A lady would me and say, "Look at my black eye! How much all I make her pay for it?" There were also cases the damaged bicycle, the spoilt dress, the dreadful te of the house, and the runaway husband! ores of applicants came for advice regarding land-rd and tenant, workmen's compensation, etc. In e last few years the Poor Man's Lawyer at Clare-ont has dealt with no less than 4,783 applicants.

ST. PAUL'S BRIDGE.

It would be interesting to know exactly how the arrel arose between the Bridge House Estates mmittee and the L.C.C. over St. Paul's Bridge. far the public have been told nothing except t the conditions of the L.C.C. are unreasonable; that much-abused body has not, we believe, ended itself. The whole question is one of such at public importance that Londoners have a ht to know. Already some ambitious people are ggesting that the southern approach of the St. ul's Bridge should be linked up with the southern d of Westminster Bridge by the construction of embankment on the Surrey side. The southern d of Westminster Bridge will in any case be eatly improved in appearance when the new unty Council building which is now being built completed. It is expected to form a worthy mplement of the beautiful St. Thomas's Hospital he western side.

VICTOR HUGO'S PRACTICAL SIDE.

It may not be generally known that Victor Hugo d to draft the advertisements of his own books, tead of leaving the task to his publishers. His rrespondence with his Belgian publishers give following example of the great novelist's adver-ing style:—"After the middle ages, the present ne: Such is the subject of Victor Hugo's double dy. What he did for Gothic art in "Notre Dame Paris" that he has done for the modern world in s Miserables.' The two books figure in his scheme work as two mirrors reflecting the whole human e." An encouraging example to those young thors who cannot make up their minds how much desty is enjoined by the best literary traditions?

REMBRANDT IN AMERICA.

It is asserted as a fact that there are not less than 3 paintings by Rembrandt in the United States. he first of these, "Danae and the Shower of Gold," as brought to the country in 1854. Since then the umber has steadily increased until the present sur-rising total is reached, which means that of this Dutch master's canvasses America has double e number left in Holland, with a score to spare, aving only two countries which possess more: reat Britain, which has 165, and Germany, 120. s yet only nine of the Rembrandt paintings in merica are to be found in public museums; but ere is a noticeable tendency on the part of col-ectors to leave art treasures of this kind to national nstitutions, as is the custom in Europe.

GERMAN WEDDING FEAST.

A German lady furnishes a contemporary with a description of the feast which follows a German wedding. It is a mighty meal, which puts the German's power of stoic, cheerful endurance to the test. The clergyman sits between the bride and bridegroom and makes a speech in their honour. Then the father of the bridegroom makes a speech in honour of the bride's family, and the father of the bride makes a speech in honour of the bridegroom's family and then come the guests, the ladies, everybody "en fin," till there is nothing left to toast except the wine itself. All this takes some hours, usually from three to seven, and the "Stimmung" rises from degree to degree, especially after the pointedly ignored departure of the bride and bridegroom. The evening is concluded with a dance.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS:—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, is the best known remedy for dysentery and iarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other auses. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by edicine dealers everywhere.

GREEN ROOM GOSSIP.

MR. W. SOMERSET MAUGHAM'S NEW COMEDY.

IT will be remembered that the good Captain Bragg was pleased to consider Major Dobbin "a meritorious officer, but ain't got no distangy manners dammy!" Mr. Somerset Maugham's new play, "Grace," brought out at the Duke of York's in mail week is extraordinarily full of "distangy manners." Its scene is the stately country-house of Mr. Claude Insole (who, by the way, pronounces his patronymic as a dactyl), and Mr. Claude is emphatically "county." His brother, Archibald a clergyman, is rather more so; and his aged mother Mrs. Insole, is the countiest of them all. In fact, never, writes a correspondent in one's whole experience of the Theatre, has one seen anybody quite so exceedingly "country" as this Mrs. Insole; and, as no one (Mr. Maugham himself, doubtless, least of all) would ever dream of looking for such a person any where in real life—unless, perhaps, in a county asylum—we may conclude that she is the most overwhelming embodiment of "county" ever created. In other words, she is quite amazingly ignorant, insolent and ill-bred; and as Lady Tree impersonates her with an almost exaggerated conscientiousness, and as, moreover, she is the real protagonist of the play, it follows that "Grace" is not a particularly enjoyable entertainment for those whom excessive caricature fails to amuse. Her son, Claude, is a shadowy person, with stern ideas as to punishing immorality among the workers on his estate, but who freely decorates his conversation with some of the flowers of speech popularised in the music halls by the late Mr. Herbert Campbell. Her other son, the clergyman, reminds one of the country vicar who used to preach very dull sermons in a wooden pulpit but was a delightful talker at the dinner-table, and whose son said of him, "Yes, the guv'nors much better fun in the bottle than he is in the wood." And Claude's middle-class wife, Grace wearied of Claude and of "county," has been carrying on a "liaison" with her husband's friend, Henry Cobbet, a sad cad, but falls out of love with Henry and into love with Claude towards the end of the third act, and during most of the fourth is making up her mind to confess her sin, until Miss Vernon of Foley (another "county" lady, who exclaims loudly in a drawing-room that the human race are "such blooming fools") convinces her that she will most effectively punished herself and spare her husband by keeping her past to herself. Which she accordingly does. And the curtain finally falls on middle class Grace and county Claude in a rapturous embrace. What it all means one is at a loss to decide. It has this in common with the great works of Shakespeare and Moliere, that one can read a dozen meanings into it. It has moments of eloquence and of wit, but as an amusing entertainment it is distinctly intermittent, and as a picture of county or country life it does not appear to me to exist.

GOOD ACTING IN POOR PARTS.

Miss Irene Vanbrugh does her best with the part of Grace, and gives us several of her celebrated explosive outbursts one has often been thrilled by them in the past, when they have been accompanied by inevitable and thrilling words, but on this occasion they left one calm and called, for there seemed no inevitability and not much real sincerity at the back of them. Mr. Dennis Eadie, as Claude, was similarly handicapped by having to depict a man who is apparently a nice fellow, and yet treats abominably a servant whose only crime is that his daughter has "got into trouble," whose adores his wife yet permits his mother to affront her at her pleasure unrebuked, and who is apparently a shrewd person, yet suspects nothing of a 'liaison' which is being carried on under his own roof, and which his friend, Miss Vernon of Foley, discovers in no time. Other well-known players appear in other parts and do their best with them. The truest piece of work seemed to come from Miss Mary Barton, in the part of Mrs. Insole's maid, Miss Hall a character which the author has apparently drawn with a good deal of care, and of which the actress certainly succeeded in making rather a pathetic little figure. The production had a fairly cordial reception but "Grace" is not another "Smith." Its people are too uniformly "unpleasant" to be popular and too exaggerated to be artistic.

THE LATE MR. GEORGE WEIR.

Mr. Henry Ainley's letter on behalf of the family of the late Mr. George Weir, will, it is to be hoped, draw a generous response. Mr. Weir was one of the very best Shakspearean clowns of our time. His Touchstone was, by all account, the drollest and most Shakspearean seen in London since Mr. Lionel Brough played the part at the Imperial more than a quarter of a century ago, and his Falstaff was splendid. He had a delightful way of letting humorous lines ripple naturally from his lips, and his genial face and rich "burr" added to the comic effect of his impersonations. He was more than once the object of alluring attempts to secure him for other managements, but his loyalty to Mr Benson was unshakable and other many years of faithful work he died in his service. The family of so good an actor, so loyal a comrade, and so zealous and able a public servant should be in need is much to be regretted, and there will be nothing but sympathy with the fund Mr. Ainley is raising, and for which contributions can be addressed to him at His Majesty's Theatre.

A GERMAN REPERTORY THEATRE.

Dr. Stahl contributes to the current number of "Deutschland," published in Dusseldorf, an article on the Schauspielhaus of that city, and the work it is doing under the management of Luise Dumont and Gustave Lindemann for the German Theatre from the histrionic and literary standpoints. In Germany the provinces, for the most part, copy Berlin theatres, just as in England they copy those of London; but this Dusseldorf playhouse produces its own plays in its own way, on the lines of Miss Hornima's Theatre at Manchester. To quote from the article, every honest drama, be it lively or severe, is given its chance, carefully rehearsed, and mounted and cast in accordance with the desires of the author. Tradition and convention are ignored; all the furniture, decoration, and costumes used on the stage are manufactured in workshops attached to the theatre; and a theatrical academy, at which students of the art of acting are soundly taught, forms an important part of the scheme. Nor is it only dramatic art which is cultivated. Lectures on many subjects are given, and in this way the Dusseldorf public have made acquaintance with Goethe and Hauptmann, Spinoza and Nietzsche, Gluck and Reder, the time of the Biedermeiers in old Vienna, and the days of 1870 in the Franco-German war. Altogether, the Dusseldorf Schaupielhaus has become the temple and a disseminating centre of a varied culture; and the spirit in which it is conducted may be gathered from the peroration of a speech lately made by Dr. Stahl at the opening of one of its extensions: "Let us all continue in our work, each of us doing his part for this theatre, and may God protect the Arts we are serving!" It is to be hoped that the example of Dusseldorf will soon be followed in many English provincial towns, to the advancement and honour of the British Theatre and of British acting.

THE CINEMATOGRAPH.

Apropos of the impending conversion of Terry's into a cinematographic theatre, it is interesting to find from a note in a leading American paper devoted to matters connected with the profession that in New York alone there are no fewer than twenty playhouses which have recently been turned to similar uses. The point is raised in connection with the surprise frequently expressed as to the reason why that city is so far behind certain smaller towns in the matter of pretentious motion-picture theatres, specially built for the purpose. There are two reasons, declares the writer, both of which are important. First, the high cost of land, centrally located; also the building restrictions which require open space around theatres seating 300 people or more, have operated to keep amusement capital out of this form of investment. Second, the demand for large houses for picture entertainment has been filled to a considerable extent by the use of theatres originally erected for stage amusements. So far London has escaped this fate, but who shall say that the transformation of Terry's may not be the beginning of the end, and that before very long other theatres will be found following in its footsteps.

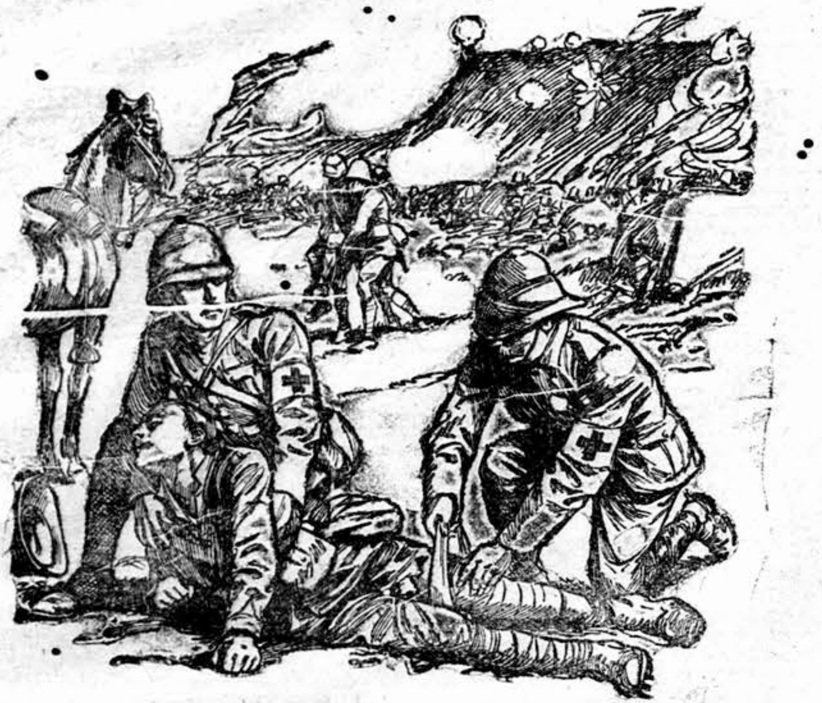
A Medical Officer



Debility, Nervous Exhaustion—

Certainly the absolute confidence of eminent doctors is evidence enough of the exceptional benefits imparted by Phosferine. Even doctors cannot do more to prove their confidence than by using Phosferine to remedy their own disorders. Could any proof be more definite, more convincing than the testimony of John Dodd, D.S.M., Medical Officer in the late South African War, who says: "After being shot through both lungs I was dangerously reduced, and I attribute it solely to Phosferine that I regained my usual health. I have proved the value of Phosferine in brain, nerve, and muscular exhaustion." This brilliant medical officer found Phosferine particularly serviceable for insufficiency of nerve force, and declares nothing was so suitable in combating fevers, chills, &c.

Not possible now

John Dodd, D.S.M. (late of the Medical Staff, 5th Imperial Yeomanry, 1st Brigade, South Africa), Ladysmith House, Witton-le-Wear, writes:—"I have had considerable experience in the use of your invaluable remedy Phosferine, and it has proved particularly serviceable where there exists insufficiency of nerve force. This condition, often due to primary weakness, lays the system open to influenza, colds, neuralgia, rheumatism, indigestion, fevers, and in remedying this predisposition I have found nothing so suitable as your preparation. Phosferine invariably goes to the root of the mischief direct. The certainty of its action is moreover an estimable feature. In debility and kindred ailments, caused by a reduced system, it has unprecedented power, and in my own case I can bear evidence to its exceptional value, and am indeed greatly indebted to its wonderful restorative properties. During the late war in South Africa, I was shot through both lungs and pericardium and that reduced me most dangerously; after taking Phosferine for about two months it brought me back to my usual health. I attribute this solely to the use of Phosferine. I have advised Phosferine in several cases, and proved its value in brain, nerve, and muscular exhaustion."—March 11, 1910.

VETARZO BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD.

This remarkable compound, the result of the latest developments and achievements of modern chemistry, pharmacology, and therapeutics, is without equal in all cases of defective nerve power, whether induced by worry, over-work, unhealthy climate, dissipation, excess, youthful imprudence, or other influences incidental to the wear and tear and haste or overstrain of modern life. Sleeplessness, tremblings, palpitation, nervous dyspepsia, low spirits, mental and bodily prostration, muscular and local weakness, general and nervous debility, faulty nutrition, premature decay or deficiency of the vital forces, impaired vitality, harassing dreams, night disturbances, sudden startings, dimness of sight, defective hearing, loss of memory, inability to perform the various duties of life, or to enjoy its pleasures, restlessness that can settle to nothing, irritability of temper, female complaints, hysteria, painful periods, backache, bearing down sensations, nervous headache, wasting disease, night sweats, and all other phases of brain and nerve exhaustion, are successfully combated by this highly scientific preparation. Bracing up the system generally, it gives tone to the exhausted nerves, arrests all weakening wasting discharges, involuntary losses, &c.; restores the failing energies, and imparts new life and vigour to what had so recently seemed worn out, "used up," and valueless.

VETARZO BLOOD MEDICINE.

Never before was there anything like it, nor can its marvellous properties ever be equalled in all cases of poorness, impurity, or other imperfection of the blood from whatever cause arising. No sooner is it imbibed into the system than it permeates and penetrates to the minutest capillaries, overcoming and expelling the virus of disease, wheresoever and in whatsoever form met with; removing all blotches, pimples, scurf, scurvy, scrofulous and glandular swellings, discolorations, roughness and unsightly patches, &c. Its effects are almost magical in the treatment of gout, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, pains and swellings of the joints, discharges, secondary symptoms, eczema, lepra, psoriasis, bad legs, bad breasts, abscesses, ulcers, sores, goitre or Derbyshire neck, it improves the general health, and quickly removes long-standing bronchitis, asthma, and hacking, straining, spasmodic cough, too often the precursor of consumption.

CAUTION.—Ask for "VETARZO Brain and Nerve Food," or "VETARZO Blood Medicine," whichever is required, and see that you get them, as unprincipled vendors often try to palm off inferior preparations (usually their own manufacture), for the sake of extra profit. Price in England, 2/9. Every genuine bottle of these medicines bears the British Government Stamp with the words "VETARZO REMEDIES" impressed thereon, in white letters on a red ground, by direction of His Majesty's Hon. Commissioners. Registered Trade Mark "VETARZO." Legal proceedings will be taken against persons pirating.

COMMON SENSE IN A NUTSHELL.—A NEW medical work on the causes and most scientific and effectual means of self-cure ever discovered for nervous exhaustion, depression of spirits, want of zest and energy, &c., with practical observations on marriage and full directions for removing certain disqualifications that destroy the happiness of wedded life. It also treats on urinary derangements, secondary symptoms, stricture, &c., and no sufferer should fail to procure a copy. Post free in plain envelope on receipt of Postal Order Sixpence, from THE VETARZO REMEDIES Co., Gospel Oak, London, or of Agents for above medicines. Price 10 annas Post Free.

LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL

THE PUREST. THE MOST PALATABLE. THE MOST DIGESTIBLE. THE MOST EFFICACIOUS.

Incontestably proved by Forty Years' Medical Experience to be

CONSUMPTION AND DISEASES OF THE CHEST, THROAT AFFECTIONS, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, WASTING DISEASES OF CHILDREN, RICKETS, AND ALL SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

DR. PROSSER JAMES,
Lecturer on Materia Medica, London Hospital.

"Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL contains the whole of the active ingredients of the remedy, and is easily digested. Hence its value, not only in Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, but in a great number of cases to which the Profession is extending its use."

DR. HUNTER SEMPLE,
Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat and Chest, London.

"I have long been aware of the great reputation enjoyed by the LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL introduced into medical practice by Dr. DE JONGH, and have recommended it with the utmost confidence. I have no hesitation in stating my opinion, that it possesses all the qualities of a good and efficient medicine. Its taste is by no means disagreeable, and might even be called pleasant. I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL very useful in cases of Chronic Cough, and especially in Laryngeal Disease complicated with Consumption."

DR. SAUNDERS, C.B.,
Late Deputy-Inspector-General Army Hospitals, Superintendent London Medical Mission.

"I have used Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL extensively among the sick poor of St. Giles's, and consider it a valuable remedy, especially in the Wasting Diseases of Children."

DR. WHITMORE,
Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone, London.

"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a Medical Practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT BROWN COD LIVER OIL as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL, I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and regiminal properties, and which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination.

Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is supplied ONLY in IMPERIAL Half-Pints, Pints and Quarts, sealed with BETTS' Patent Capsule impressed on the top with Dr. DE JONGH'S Stamp, and on the side with his Signature, and the Signature of ANSAR, HARFORD & Co.; and bearing under the wrapper a Label with the same Stamp and Signatures. WITHOUT THESE MARKS NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE.

Sold by all respectable Chemists, Druggists, and Storekeepers throughout the World.
